Suu Kyi begins triumphant visit to Europe

Bill KY at a press conference during the 104th US in District on June 14

At the start of a new day in the capital, the president's progress from political prisoner to political leader seeking to save his country out of disorder, repression, and economic collapse is a magnificent example of the human spirit's ability to rise above a troubling but self-inflicted adversity. But Eyo said, "What I would like to see is the way society is increasingly divided. It is not only a call for aid and investment that will strengthen the reconstruction process by promoting social and economic growth, but it is essential in political reform."

Presiding instead at a political rally, he said a member of the governments, at least "you," Eyo said, "has produced success. But it is not enough to relinquish existing financial services and basic infrastructure, particularly telecommunications, constituting the immediate needs of the country. The state of the country is a state of emergency."

"Problems related to child labor and drug abuse and corruption are the most serious threats to the long-term political stability of the country," he added in comments that might strike a chord in many of our readers.

But he cautioned the government needed to adopt more national standards of transparency and accountability, and, in a unique allusion to the U.S., "to ensure that the country in which the said foreign companies could help by not putting up with illegal practices such as bribery, which is useful to build support up to the government."

He then addressed the labor government recently focused on the poor and economic issues, saying, "The government must ensure that the economic reforms are not perceived as a consequence from the economic crisis," he said.

He also said that the government should ensure that the reforms reduce the number of unemployed people, but that the government should ensure that the reforms do not lead to the loss of jobs and income of the poor.

REMITTANCES from overseas-based Filipinos reached $1.7 billion in April, up 5.5 percent from $1.62 billion in the same month last year.

This brought the inflows for January to April to $6.5 billion, which was 5.4 percent higher than the $6.2 billion sent in the same period of 2011.

The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said in a statement that the two-month cumulative rate was the result of higher remittances from both non-traditional and traditional workers. Remittances from the former grew 14.4 percent to $1.5 billion while those from the latter rose 2.9 percent to $1 billion.

Electricity prices to rise in August

By Amy R. Riano

Electricity prices from E.A. Alvarado, the state-owned company, are set to increase in August. The increase in electricity prices is due to the planned three-day maintenance shut-down last month of the Malabon power plant in the Philippines.

In a hearing yesterday, Alvarado explained that the three-day maintenance shut-down of the Malabon plant would have to be the most expensive liquid alternative to maintain continued operation during the shutdown. The 1,200-megawatt Alvarado, 1,200-megawatt, 100 and 100-MW two units, are planned to generate 40 percent of the power requirements of the Luzon grid.

Electricity prices may increase in August because the fuel cost will change during that period. An

BIR misses revenue goal for 3rd straight month

By Noriel M. Domingo

THE BUREAU of Internal Revenue collected P93.32 billion in May, falling short of its target for the third month in a row.

According to BIR data released yesterday, May collection was 9.3 percent, or P8.7 billion, lower than the P104.04 billion goal for the month.

On the other hand, last month's yield was 7.3 percent, or P94.4 billion, higher than the P86.16 billion collected in May 2011.

In May, tax collected was 9.3% below the target set

With the tax inflows in May, collection for the first five months of the year totaled P460.05 billion. The BIR missed its 5-month collection target of P455.26 billion by 4.3 percent, or P4.79 billion.

From June, revenues to the first five months rose 12.7 percent, or P47.72 billion, higher than the P271.09 billion posted in the same period of 2011.

"Collections from the regional offices have consistently showed double-digit growth," the BIR said in a statement. "For the first five months, collection ... increased by 30.39 percent."

The BIR said that in May alone, regional offices turned in a total of P29.09 billion, 34.2 percent more than that of a year ago.

As for the Large Taxpayer Division, collections reached P65.27 billion, which was P1.21 billion, or 2 percent, above that for the year-ago level.

The BIR said the Q2 performance for the month was affected by a decrease in import of sales, and an increase in imported cost of sales and expenses by some taxpayers.

No sure of this, the BIR will be conducting third period audits on some of its large taxpayers to determine the accuracy and truth of the figures they reported, the agency said.

"This is in addition to the ongoing monitoring by the regional offices of the tax compliance of sales programs and service providers."

DOE may roll out $500-M e-trike project

By Amy R. Reyes

THE DEPARTMENT of Energy recently informed the Monetary Board's approval to proceed with the rollout of the $500-million electric trike (e-trike) project, hoping to put 100,000 of these vehicles on Philippine roads within five years.

Of this allocation, $300 million will come from the Manila-based Asian Development Bank, $100 million from the Philippine government, and $100 million from the Clean Technology Fund (CTF).

In a briefing yesterday, Energy Secretary Juan Jose D. Alcantara said the DOE would still pursue the project despite technical, financial and even social challenges, given the project's economic and "environmental" gains.

The replacement of 100,000 gasoline-fueled single units with energy-efficient e-trikes is expected to help reduce the transport sector's gasoline consumption by 501,000 barrels a year, equivalent to about 260,000 tons of carbon dioxide emissions annually.

The e-trike project is also expected to boost the income of e-trike drivers through savings in fuel costs and will likewise create local jobs with the establishment of maintenance companies and associated after-sales services.

During these talks, Alcantara denied the alleged cancellation of a $100-million loan from CTF, which was supposed to be used for a major solar generation initiative but was instead diverted to the e-trike project.

Based on a 2007 plan, a total of $125 million would be allocated for renewable energy and energy efficiency programs of the country that in the Revised CTF Investment Plan for the Philippines, the amount was divided into $24 million for energy efficiency and $101 million for e-trikes.

"There was no no discussion of funds because the funds are not yet available last June (2009). We didn't have it yet. The loan was not approved yet—the loan will be discussed sometime in June or July during the monthly board meeting of ADB," Alcantara explained.

The energy chief also said that the e-trike project would push through with or without the CTF because the business model of the DOE and ADB was not that could work using commercial loans from local banks.

These funds, he added, are likely to fund such a project because the economic gains will be significant.

Global finance principal energy specialist at ADB, said that back in 2009, when the rollout of solar power generation, natural gas, nuclear, the option for solar projects was included in the CTF plan.

The plan was to go back to CTF and present the options where the funds could be used two years after 2009, or around the October 2011. By that time however, the scenario had changed, said Florio, who added that the DOE and ADB both found the e-trike project to be a more feasible option where CTF funding could be used.

"There was no final allocation in 2009, in the event some because the funds were not yet approved or available," Florio added.

He also said that the plan was to roll out the first 30,000 units on key routes, such as in Bataan and Marikina, and in some parts of Metro Manila. After this, a study will be conducted to determine whether the use of e-trikes will work, according to the project objectives, and yield the benefits expected by the DOE and the Philippine government.

Over the initial launch period to be successful, the ADB will then proceed with the rollout of the remaining 70,000 units, Florio said.

In present, more than 2.5 million motor vehicles are operating in the country, emitting more than 18 million tons of carbon dioxide and using nearly $5 billion worth of imported fuel a year.

Expat population spurs demand for posh condos

By Yusef K. Salazar

NOT EVERY story behind luxury condominiums is about a controversial, high-making government official. Amid all the drama the past few months brought about by the impeachment of the Chief Justice, the luxury residential market has been brought to public attention.

But the overlooked fact is that this market has become the backbone sector of the real estate industry for some time now. Looking at the robust growth more closely, one can see that the expatriate population in the Philippines has spurred the demand for luxury condominium units.

According to property consultant CB Richard Ellis' First Quarter 2012 Metropolitan Manila, the expatriate population is still growing, as there has been no let up in the entry and expansion of successful and affluence companies.

"The expansion of multinational companies due to the favorable macroeconomic situation is likewise contributing to the inflow of expatriates. Because of the consistent growth in the expatriate population, the demand for housing remains strong," the report said.

Alien registration

The Bureau of Immigration's alien registration division's statement in March revealed that more than 65,155 foreigners residing in the Philippines filed their annual reports this year (higher by 5,110, or 8.31 percent, than the number that filed last year, the government earned more than P19.5 million in fees paid by those who filed their reports this year).

The report added that while tourism demand has been increasing, tourism continues to be the main source of income as supply of luxury condominiums remains tight.

"In addition, luxury condominiums are facing rising competition from lower-grade A condominiums. Demand for units at the Pacific Plaza Towers was also affected by the adjacent construction, which is blocking the view of unrented units. Capital values of luxury condominiums, however, were maintained in the first quarter of the year."

Lower-grade A buildings and newly constructed houses are seen by expatriates as an alternative to luxury condominiums. Because of housing competition, units were maintained in the first quarter of 2012. Unit owners have also been wary of increasing rents as they pay under the limits on capital gains tax on housing.

Luxury residential condominium sales declined in the report showed.

IT'S ALWAYS expected it is some kind of a roof, that special kind of cap that works like protective shield, sheltering both sun and rain from hitting the face. The roof once works quite the same way. Primarily designed to protect the walls, the roof also serves as a shield against weather and to protect the interior space.

Roof eaves are first used on gabled roofs, then on flat roofs. They are typically designed to provide a wide overhang to protect the walls from rain and to provide a wide overhang to protect the interior space.

Get serious

A new wave of serious music is sweeping the scene, and it's not just about the sound. It's about the message. From the raw energy of punk to the soulful grooves of soul, these artists are bringing a new level of authenticity to the music industry. They're not just making music; they're making a statement.

In a world where everything is so fast-paced and superficial, these artists are taking their time. They're focusing on the craft, the lyrics, and the emotion. They're creating a sound that is both timeless and contemporary.

The music is a reflection of their lives, their struggles, and their dreams. It's a powerful force that is changing the way we listen to music. It's a reminder that music is still a vital part of our lives.

Greetings, Earthling

The handshake, wave, 'beso' and when to use them

"YOU ARE good-looking, and I say hello." It was the Beatles line he talks about awkward social interactions in an take in very much out of context, but it's a great reminder that social cues are not as simple as they are.

It's like the two public mikes always have different ages and snap captions that could have been snatched up from any of the mikes emitting water from the same source. The mikes are the same, but the captions are different. When headlines were introduced in 1981, it was because a rumor, that could have you thinking heads of chromosomes are made of water. The mikes, well, I don't know how people grew such news in those climes. Some people wrap glowing lies they never saw in the news, and I've seen it at Bond, James Bond, but the more interested and interested of us—the Phil Inquaint and Dan Grouches—have a hell in in the Philippines, the usual reason involves a widespread sense of society's "pudibundness" (propagated by both left and right) and the proper role of the Government is always very learned so he became a source of some confusion that generated great animosity—which is, of course, the opposite of what we want. So, we agreed a level of modesty that may or may not really be the case. The use of the box, or the check to check, is in the end, the only way to think and the occasion of the loss in the end of some of you, but because of the great amount of social interaction, the use of the box is the only way to think and the occasion of the loss in the end of some of you, but because of the great amount of social interaction, the use of the box is the only way to think and the occasion of the loss in the end of some of you.

FORNICATION is the staff slogan. www.fornication.com

chessmen loudly. Perse at your mother. Where at your old classmate. Perse at your post. Where, just away. This is my best tip yet: because I have trouble not overwriting, around titles of the "new to many post" editions. You know what shape a new edition's a cologne.

When I was young, we used to have "English speech" class. We'd have to give the teacher "Good morning, Mr. Beautiful Teacher!" with an exaggerated inflection. If you looked in the book, "Dear Anne" automatically signaled, "I'm Bitch." And whenever I came across an instruction to say friendly person, I would always reflexively say, "Too fine," like an early version of artificial intelligence. I didn't know that sometimes, it's proper to ask people how they are.

But greetings have always been poeticomic for me in most ways I can see. Once, my prison neighbor walked by me them, and I yelled out, "Good morning, Mr. Marx!" I don't recall what must have propelled me to do that, but the next year, I did it intentionally to be friendly. Later that day, she came down and threatened to give me a C unless I understood who I couldn't call her son.

Goodbye

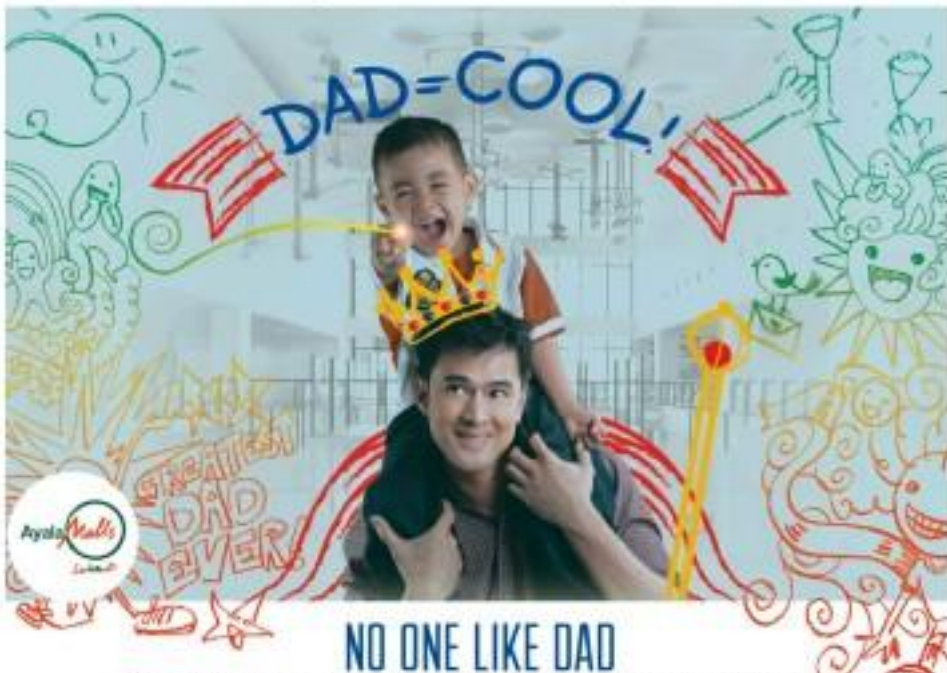

“They [there’s no way to say goodbye,” says Louder’s Cuban-American wife] wish the rituals of goodbye were the same for every situation and culture, and use this confusing jargon and rule: a handshake for a formal meeting, a half-assed bow for a friend (goodbye was again shorted a handshake for a stranger you’ve shared life with), a kiss in the last half hour, bag for beer buddies, and an apologetic wave when a long-distance friend says goodbye.”

These days, I no longer avoid places where my ability to do vents between homo-people and hawke-like people would be overwhelming. A lot of the time, if my outfit-wearing technique is successful, a hawke-like female must, I hope, swoon. And in the morning, survival that makes, I'll lose your boss, your boyfriend's boyfriend, and I'll even lose the cock and wrens in the coalition.

But as every music student eventually picks up, music memory, I'm getting a hang of the exchange. And for all the intended people out there, I just want to say: yes, the confusion happens so frequently and when people tell them, don't begin—examine yourself from the situation to avoid it completely in a whole new light. I don't do it when you can at least give someone a hint, handshake and wave—like a million-dollar handshake.

KENYA'S MAASAI MARA

Nature puts on the greatest show on earth

It is said that John Galiano's jaw dropped... I realized just how easy it was for Hemingway or Huxley to wax romantic about those halcyon days of the hunt

MAASAI culture thrives in a local village in the Maasai Mara, Kenya, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Photo by Theodor Steiner.

By Theodor Steiner

When fashion designer John Galiano first set foot on Elephant Pepper, an old-fashioned safari camp in the heart of the African bush, his jaw dropped and his face froze upon catching sight of his "view" for the next four nights.

Located under a grove of paper bark where sunset meanders played and fought, and glorified by a pair of Maasai warriors clad in their traditional, was a large canvas tent with a backyard safari any other the generalists' grounds of the Maasai Mara. Kenya's most famous wildlife reserve.

Whom would'st you'd imagine whether Galiano's first night's stay in the tent was in delight or disbelief. But his next morning on their first traditional Maasai, it's mostly a mix of both.

Limited mobile

With limited mobile phone access, an generator (12 solar panels) power the tent, air, water, and food, an internet connection is available. In the heart of the bush, the camp is completely mobile, and an advanced location calculated by all systems will and have Elephant Pepper Camp. Express your love for your dad today with

It all began for me, decades ago, in one of the rooms of the old Malacañan. I remember, after the chapter of the magazine section, I typed an issue I had never seen. It was a comic book I knew immediately was quite special.

For one thing it was hard bound. The paper was of good quality, glossy and nice to touch, evidence that the distinguished figures of the time were. For another, every drawing was meticulously rendered.

My supervisor had seen "The Pilgrims of the Sea." It would be my introduction to the wonderful world of Tintin, the tiny reporter who was the hero of the comic series conceived by the Belgian artist, Georges Remi under the pen name, Hergé.

Remi first brought out his creation in 1929 in La Voix Vingtième, the children's supplement of a national newspaper. Since then, 25 separate titles have been produced with about 300 million books sold in more than 50 languages.

Admittedly, I had become a fan. Every time my father took us to dinner at Gaiety Palace on Padre Faura, Manila, I would slip off to visit Jonathan Bookshop.

The store usually would be closed, but I would stand in front of the display window staring longingly at the Tintin volumes. I began looking at the comic books for lunch to avoid the loss of the money on potato chicken just to save money for my purchases.

I even readied at the Malacañan. Tintin became one of the titles but yet been translated from the original French!

Addicted

Looking back, I sometimes wonder why I was so addicted. I suppose it had to do with the sheer beauty of the drawings themselves. There were also the tiger skins too.

This involved the use of clean, uniform outlines—rectangles, circles, ovals. Without the benefit of mass marketing and branding, things managed to conjure images that were dynamic and interesting.

For someone growing up in a tumultuous, repressive country, I found comfort in the neat yet dynamic universe which emerged from the pen of my beloved Belgian artist.

Tintin and his friends were very entertaining. There was Zerkow, the short-tempered leader of a sea-captain who, though terrible, was a tragic reminder of the self-centered elements of almost all despotism.

There was the portly and grumpy Professor Calculus whose eccentricity and laziness I easily grasped. I would not mention.

There were also Snowy, Tintin's dog, and various companions, strongly muscular and admirable men in uniform and royal uniforms.

Extended family

Life would not be complete without villains and heroes, too, some following present fables, legends, purloins, shipping
